Dear parents,

As you have very likely heard, Governor Cuomo has extended school closures in New York State through, at least, May 15th, 2020.

At this point, the daily instructional routine of our system of remote instruction is familiar and consistent for students. Please encourage them to continue to work diligently on their daily assignments, as participation and engagement are central to the pass/fail grading system which is currently in-place, and because staying current with the curriculum will best position them for future academic success.

Our technical support system seems to be working well, and students and parents should avail themselves of these resources, which can be accessed through the district's website (www.plattscsd.org).

Whether we will be returning to regular school following May 15th, and what instruction will look like at that time, are not yet known. We will keep you abreast of any subsequent executive orders from the Governor, or guidance from the State Education Department.

For now, please stay safe and comfortable.

Best,

Jay Lebrun
